PORTFOLIO MANAGER COMMENT

Recovery unabated amid uncertainty, proclaimed the IMF in its April 2023 regional economic outlook report on the Asia-Pacific. In 2022, several shocks set back the global recovery, including commodity price shocks, global trade disruptions and rapidly rising inflation. China’s growth was stunted by zero-Covid policies and troubles in its property sector. Despite these global and regional pressures, growth in the region was resilient in the second half of 2022. The IMF estimates that for 2022, the Asia Pacific achieved growth of 3.8% that, while lower than the strong rebound of 6.5% in 2021, beat estimates. China’s economy avoided a contraction, despite continued intermittent lockdowns. Strong pent-up regional demand and resilient demand from the West, along with easing Covid-19 measures, drove the strong recovery.

Although the impact of the aforementioned shocks continues to be felt in 2023, it is less intense. The broad decline in food and energy prices at the end of 2022 has brought some respite to both consumers and commodity importers and has contributed to moderating price pressures in the region. Global financial conditions have eased from recent peaks which has reduced some pressures on Asian currencies and borrowing costs. In China, the COVID-19 waves subsided in January and mobility has normalized.

The Asia-Pacific has been shielded to some extent from the recent banking crisis in the United States and Europe, as the rapid responses made by policymakers in the region appear to have somewhat diminished market anxiety. Nonetheless, the region remains exposed to headwinds from the currently fragile market sentiment.

Our cautious approach is reflected in the current Asset Allocation. At IWM Capital, we believe that with all the uncertainty and volatility, it is simply not possible to invest fully in the current markets. We believe that the best approach is to hold a diversified portfolio with quality being the main focal point. We focus on finding and investing in the best quality value and quality growth stocks that we truly believe will deliver the best possible returns.

RISK PROFILE

MEDIUM - HIGH RISK

- This portfolio holds more equity exposure than a medium risk portfolio but less than a high-risk portfolio. In turn the expected volatility is higher than a medium risk portfolio, but less than a high-risk portfolio. The probability of losses is higher than that of a medium risk portfolio, but less than a high-risk portfolio and the expected potential long-term investment returns could therefore be higher than a medium risk portfolio.
- The portfolio is exposed to equity as well as default and interest rate risks.
- Therefore, it is suitable for medium to long term investment horizons.
